01 Your working nature

Before looking at job titles, a kundli describes how you work: what energises you, how you make decisions and what kind of environment brings out your best. For you, Aarav, the answer starts with a crowded, royal Lagna.

A leader's Lagna

Your Lagna is Simha (Leo), the sign of the king. Simha rising people work best when they own something: a project, a team, a decision. You bring warmth, standards and a sense of occasion to your work, and you are at your most productive when your effort is visible and appreciated. Being micromanaged or kept anonymous drains you faster than hard work ever will.

Four grahas sit together in your Lagna: Mangal, Budh, Guru and Shukra. Professionally, that combination gives you initiative (Mangal), clear communication (Budh), judgement and ethics (Guru) and taste and diplomacy (Shukra). Few charts carry this many working tools in the first house. The challenge is focus. With so many talents available, choosing one main direction and staying with it is the single most valuable career decision you can make.

- ◆ Four grahas in your Lagna: initiative, speech, judgement and taste, all expressed through your own personality.

Drive and discipline

Mangal is your Yogakaraka: for a Simha Lagna it rules both the 4th and the 9th houses, and it sits in your own Lagna. In work terms this means your luck follows your action. Opportunities appear when you move first, pitch the idea, or volunteer for the difficult assignment.

Shani sits in Makara, its own sign, in your 6th house, the house of daily work, service and competition. This is one of Saturn's strongest placements and forms Harsha yoga. It gives stamina, respect for process and the ability to keep going long after others have given up. Put together, Mangal gives you the spark and Shani gives you the staying power.

How you think at work

Budh, the planet of intellect and commerce, is retrograde and combust in your Lagna. Retrograde Budh reviews, revises and improves; your second draft is usually far better than your first, and you are excellent at spotting what others missed. Combust Budh works best when your ideas carry your name, so roles where you present and own your analysis suit you better than roles where you feed ideas to someone else.

Your Surya, the Lagna lord, sits in the 12th house in Karka. Some of your best work happens away from the spotlight: in research, planning, foreign connections or quiet concentration. Protect a few hours each week for uninterrupted work; for this chart it is not a luxury.

02 The 10th house and its lord

The 10th house, Karma bhava, is the classical house of career, status and public action. It shows what you are known for.

Vrishabha on the 10th

Your 10th house is Vrishabha (Taurus), with a Sarvashtakavarga score of 37, the second strongest house in your chart and well above the traditional threshold of 28. Vrishabha is an earth sign ruled by Shukra and associated with value, resources, beauty, food, finance, design and anything that must be built to last.

Careers traditionally linked with a Vrishabha 10th include finance and banking, luxury and consumer brands, design and architecture, hospitality and food, the arts, real estate, and any role where you are trusted to protect or grow something valuable. The common thread is quality: you are known for doing things properly and for making them look and feel right.

Your career lord in the Lagna

Shukra, the lord of your 10th house, sits in your Lagna in Simha. When the 10th lord joins the 1st house, career and personal identity merge: your profession becomes part of who you are, and people hire you for you, not just for your skills. Many people with this placement eventually work independently, lead a team, or become the recognisable face of what they do.

Shukra is retrograde and sits in the sign of a natural rival. That can show up as perfectionism about your work or a restlessness that makes you reinvent your role every few years. Treated well, it is a gift for refinement and renewal: careers that involve restoring, redesigning or improving existing things suit you particularly well.

- ◆ 10th house Vrishabha (score 37), its lord Shukra in your Lagna: a career people associate with your own name and taste.

Supporting houses

Your 6th house of daily work scores 32 and holds its own lord Shani, which makes routine, service and competitive environments comfortable for you. Your 11th house of income and gains scores 41, the highest in your chart. The houses that describe how you work, what you are known for and what you earn are all strong.

03 Dasamsa (D10)

Parashara devotes a separate divisional chart, the Dasamsa, to career and public standing. It refines what the birth chart promises.

A Tula Dasamsa Lagna

Your Dasamsa Lagna is Tula (Libra), and your Moon sits in it. Tula is the sign of balance, partnership and fair exchange, so your professional self is diplomatic, client-facing and good at negotiation. The Moon here adds sensitivity to people and to the mood of a room: you notice what colleagues and clients need, which makes you trusted in roles that involve relationships.

Mangal sits in its own sign Mesha in the 7th house of the Dasamsa. The 7th in a career chart describes partners, clients and business dealings, and an own-sign Mars there points to strong, direct partnerships and a talent for closing deals.

Guru sits in Simha in the 11th house of the Dasamsa, the house of gains and professional networks. Your reputation and your network are likely to bring rewards, especially when you act as an advisor or mentor.

What the Dasamsa adds

Several grahas gather in Vrishchika in your Dasamsa: Budh, Shukra and Shani. Vrishchika is the sign of depth, research and transformation. Your best professional work often involves getting underneath the surface: investigating, restructuring or turning around something that is not working. Combined with the Vrishabha 10th house in your birth chart, this suggests someone who builds lasting value by first understanding things deeply.

Reading the two charts together

The birth chart puts your career lord in your Lagna; the Dasamsa puts your Moon in its Lagna. Both say the same thing from different angles: your working life is personal. You do best when you believe in the work, when you can see the people it serves, and when your own judgement is trusted. Roles that combine client relationships with real responsibility, in advisory, design, finance or leadership, bring the two charts into harmony.

04 Wealth and gains

Wealth is read from the 2nd house (what you accumulate), the 11th house (what you gain) and the Hora chart (D2).

Your wealth lord in the Lagna

Budh rules both your 2nd house, Kanya, and your 11th house, Mithuna, and it sits in your Lagna. When the lord of both money houses lives in the 1st, earnings flow from your own skills, communication and reputation. You are unlikely to get rich by accident; you are likely to do well by being good at what you do and being known for it.

Budh sits with Guru and Mangal, the lords of your 5th and 9th houses of fortune and merit. This forms a Dhana yoga, traditionally linked with the ability to earn and build resources.

Earning is easier than keeping

Your 11th house of gains scores 41 in the Sarvashtakavarga, an unusually strong figure. Your 2nd house of savings scores 21, below the traditional comfort line of 25. The practical reading is very clear: income is likely to be good, and holding on to it needs a system. Automatic transfers to long-term savings on the day income arrives work far better for this chart than good intentions at the end of the month.

Your 12th house of expenses holds Surya and scores 22, which reinforces the same message. Travel, generosity and comfortable surroundings are natural expenses for you; budget for them deliberately so they feel like choices, not leaks.

- ◆ 11th house 41, 2nd house 21: strong gains, so build the savings habit early.

A simple wealth rule for this chart

Pay yourself first. Because Budh, your wealth lord, sits in the Lagna, money habits are within your own control more than in most charts. Set up the saving before the spending, review it weekly, and your strong 11th house will do the rest.

The Hora chart

In the Hora (D2), which divides each sign into the Sun's and the Moon's halves, your Lagna and most of your planets fall in the Sun's hora, Simha. The Sun's hora is traditionally associated with wealth earned through effort, status and authority rather than inheritance or luck. It fits the rest of your chart: your money follows your work and your name.

05 Timing of growth

The birth chart shows what is possible; dashas and transits show when. Here is how your working life is likely to unfold over the coming years.

The end of Guru Mahadasha, to August 2027

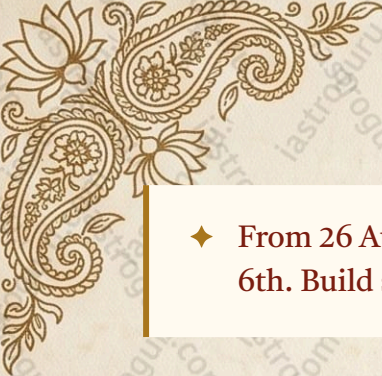

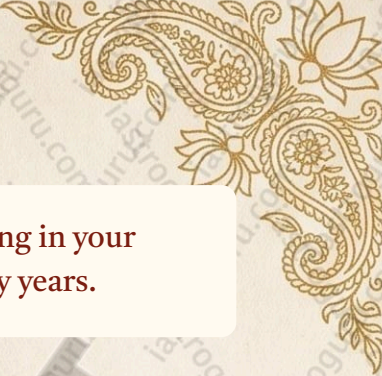

You are in the final sub-period of Guru Mahadasha: Rahu Antardasha, from 1 April 2025 to 26 August 2027. Guru has shaped your adult working life since 2011 through learning, advice and growth. Rahu, placed in your 5th house of creativity and intelligence, adds a restless appetite for new ideas, new fields and unconventional opportunities.

This is a good window to experiment: take a course in a new area, start a side project, or test a new professional direction. It is a less good window for irreversible, high-risk bets. Treat the next two years as research for the chapter that follows.

Shani Mahadasha, 2027 to 2046

On 26 August 2027 your Shani Mahadasha begins, nineteen years ruled by Saturn, which sits in its own sign in your 6th house and forms Harsha yoga. For career this is traditionally one of the most productive periods a chart can have. It favours discipline, responsibility for people and systems, quality, and long-term commitments. Progress is steady rather than sudden, and what you build in these years tends to last.

The first sub-period, Shani-Shani, runs to August 2030 and sets the foundations: the role, business or structure you commit to then is likely to carry you for many years. The Budh sub-period from August 2030 to May 2033 activates your wealth lord and is the classic window for income and gains. Ketu follows until June 2034, then Shukra, your career lord, until August 2037, which is traditionally a strong period for recognition and status.

- ◆ From 26 August 2027: Shani Mahadasha, with Saturn strong in your 6th. Build something you are proud to maintain for twenty years.

Transits in the next two years

Guru's transit enters Simha, your Lagna and the 11th from your Moon, on 31 October 2026, moves back into Karka from January to June 2027, and returns to Simha until November 2027. Jupiter in transit over the Lagna traditionally brings visibility, confidence and support from mentors: a good time to put yourself forward.

Rahu's transit moves into Makara, your 6th house, on 5 December 2026 and stays until 23 June 2028. Rahu in the 6th is a classic supportive transit for competition, problem-solving and hard work.

Shani's transit through Meena, your 8th house, until June 2027 asks for patience with changes at work and care with shared finances. From 2028 it settles in Mesha, your 9th house of fortune and higher learning, which favours teaching, travel and long-term planning.

06 Traditional practices

These upayas are traditional ways of working with the grahas that matter most for your career. They support effort; they do not replace it.

For Shani, your coming dasha lord

Shani rewards reliability. Keep your commitments, treat support staff and junior colleagues with respect, and keep your body active. Traditionally, lighting a sesame-oil lamp on Saturdays and offering help to labourers or the elderly are practices associated with Saturn, especially in the years before and during its Mahadasha.

For Shukra, your career lord

Shukra is honoured through beauty, cleanliness and generosity. Keeping a tidy, beautiful workspace, wearing clean white or light clothes on Fridays, and giving to causes that support women or the arts are traditional Friday practices.

For Budh, your wealth lord

Budh responds to learning and clear speech. Traditionally Wednesdays are for study, reciting the Vishnu Sahasranama, and giving books or school supplies. Practically, reviewing your finances every Wednesday is a remedy this chart will reward.

For Mangal, your Yogakaraka

Mangal in your Lagna is the planet of initiative, and its best remedy is movement: regular exercise, a sport or any physical discipline keeps its energy constructive instead of impatient. Traditionally, reciting the Hanuman Chalisa on Tuesdays and offering sweets or red lentils at a Hanuman temple are practices associated with Mars. Starting important work on a Tuesday morning, when Mangal's day begins, is a small traditional habit that suits a Mars-led chart.
