OI What you seek in a partner

Aarav, a marriage reading starts with you: what you need to feel loved and what you bring to a partnership. Your Lagna, your Moon and your Shukra (Venus) answer that together.

A Simha heart and a Tula mind

Your Lagna is Simha (Leo), with four grahas rising: Mangal, Budh, Guru and Shukra. In relationships you are warm, loyal, generous and protective, and you like to be proud of your partner and your home. You also need to feel admired; indifference hurts you more than open disagreement.

Your Moon is in Tula (Libra), the sign of balance and partnership itself, in Chitra nakshatra. Emotionally you need fairness, beauty and harmony at home, and you are unsettled by conflict. A Tula Moon often shows someone who feels most themselves when they are part of a pair.

Shukra in your Lagna

Your Shukra, the graha of love and attraction, sits in Simha in your 1st house, retrograde, in the sign of a natural rival. Venus in the Lagna gives charm and a strong personal sense of style and taste. Retrograde Venus tends to be particular in love and slow to settle, reviewing a choice before committing to it. Once committed, it is deeply loyal.

- ◆ Simha Lagna, Tula Moon, Shukra rising: warmth and loyalty, a need for harmony, and a careful choice of partner.

O2 The 7th house and its lord

The 7th house, Kalatra bhava, is the classical house of marriage and partnership.

Kumbha on the 7th

Your 7th house is Kumbha (Aquarius), an air sign ruled by Shani, with no graha in it. Kumbha describes a partner who is independent, thoughtful, principled and a little unconventional: someone who is a friend as much as a spouse, and who has a life and purpose of their own.

Its Sarvashtakavarga score is 19, below the traditional comfort line of 25. The reading is not that marriage is difficult, but that it asks for conscious attention: partnership grows through patience, communication and time, rather than arriving easily. Charts like yours often have their most stable marriages when both people treat the relationship as something built together.

Your 7th lord in the 6th

Shani, the lord of your 7th house, sits in Makara, his own sign, in your 6th house. The lord of marriage in the house of daily work and service suggests a partnership built on shared routines and practical support; you may meet a partner through work or service, and your marriage is likely to be one where both people carry real responsibilities.

Because Shani is strong and dignified, tradition reads the promise of your house of marriage as well supported even though its score is low. Saturn is traditionally associated with commitment that comes slowly and, once made, tends to last.

- ◆ 7th lord Shani strong in his own sign: traditionally read as a slow, serious and lasting inclination towards partnership.

O3 Shukra and the Navamsa

The Navamsa (D9) is the chart Parashara devotes to marriage and the inner life of a partnership.

Your Navamsa

Your Navamsa Lagna is Vrishabha (Taurus), a steady earth sign ruled by Shukra. Under your fiery Simha exterior, the part of you that lives inside a marriage values security, loyalty, comfort and patience.

In the Navamsa, your Shukra sits in Karka (Cancer), a caring and protective sign, and your Moon stays in Tula. Both describe love expressed through care, attentiveness and shared home life more than grand gestures. The Navamsa 7th house is Vrishchika (Scorpio), where Navamsa Mangal and Rahu sit: a partnership with depth and intensity, and a partner who may come from a different background or follow an unusual path.

O4 Mangal dosha and matching

A mild Mangal dosha

Your Mangal sits in your 1st house counted from the Lagna, which forms Mangal dosha, but not counted from the Moon, where he is in the 11th. Most traditions count this as the mild form. Guru sits beside your Mangal in Simha, which many traditions treat as a strong softening factor.

In matching, Mangal dosha is balanced when both partners share it, so a partner with any Mangal dosha of their own balances yours by the classical rule. Beyond the dosha, look for a partner whose chart supports a Kumbha 7th house: strong Saturn or Mercury themes, an air or earth Moon, and a solid Guna Milan, all read together.

05 Timing: dashas and transits

No chart fixes a date for marriage in advance. What it does show are the periods traditionally favourable for commitment.

Shani Mahadasha, from 26 August 2027

You are in Guru Mahadasha with Rahu Antardasha until 26 August 2027. On that date your nineteen-year Shani Mahadasha begins, and Shani is the lord of your 7th house. The Mahadasha of the 7th lord is the classic period for marriage and long-term partnership, and with Shani strong in your chart, commitments made in these years tend to last.

Within it, Shani–Shani runs to August 2030 and Shani–Shukra, the sub-period of the planet of love, runs from June 2034 to August 2037. Both are traditionally strong windows for commitment and for deepening an existing marriage.

- ◆ From August 2027, the Mahadasha of your 7th lord: the classic period for marriage and lasting partnership.

The sky in the next two years

Jupiter's transit enters Simha, your Lagna, on 31 October 2026, moves back to Karka from January to June 2027, and returns to Simha until November 2027. Jupiter's transit over the Lagna traditionally brings confidence, visibility and support from elders and mentors, and from there its aspect reaches your house of marriage: a supportive sign for relationships.

Rahu's transit through Kumbha, your 7th house, lasts until 5 December 2026, which can make relationships feel unsettled or unusual; it then moves on, and the house becomes calmer.

06 Making marriage work

What your chart asks of you

Your Tula Moon needs harmony and your Simha Lagna needs appreciation; your partner is likely to need independence and respect for their own work and ideas. The combination works beautifully when affection is spoken out loud and when each of you has room for your own interests.

Because your 7th lord sits in the house of daily routines, small shared habits matter more than grand occasions: a regular meal together, a weekly unhurried conversation without phones, and sharing the practical load fairly. With a mild Mangal dosha in your Lagna, agree early on how you will settle disagreements, and let them cool before you decide anything.

O7 Traditional practices

For Shani and Shukra

Because Shani rules your 7th house, the classic Saturday practices are also marriage practices for you: lighting a sesame-oil lamp, reciting the Shani stotra, and serving elders and people who do hard physical work. For Shukra, Friday is the day: wearing clean white or light clothes, keeping your home beautiful and orderly, and giving to causes that support women or the arts.

Visiting a Shiva–Parvati temple together, or keeping a small shared practice such as lighting a lamp together in the evening, is the traditional way to bring two natures into one rhythm.
