03 Elements and modalities together

Aarav

Aarav's chart spreads its ten planets across the elements as fire 2, earth 5, air 2, water 1. The strongest element is earth. Earth gives practicality, patience and the ability to make ideas real.

The least represented element is water. With little water, naming feelings, even privately in a journal, helps them flow.

By modality: cardinal 3, fixed 4, mutable 3. Fixed emphasis shows a sustainer: you build, hold and see things through.

Meera

Meera's chart spreads its ten planets across the elements as fire 2, earth 2, air 2, water 4. The strongest element is water. Water gives empathy, intuition and emotional depth.

The least represented element is fire. With little fire, motivation may need deliberate kindling: set small goals and celebrate them.

By modality: cardinal 6, fixed 2, mutable 2. Cardinal emphasis shows a starter: you like to initiate and set direction.

Together

Aarav leans to earth and Meera to water: your differences can complete each other, if each respects the other's pace.

04 House overlays

House overlays show which area of one person's life the other's planets touch. The house where a partner's planets fall is the area this relationship awakens.

05 Your compatibility score, explained

Score: 69 out of 100

This score is built from three parts, each shown below so you can see exactly how it was reached. It is not a verdict on the relationship: no score can promise a good or a difficult partnership.

Harmony (half the weight): 38%. Flowing aspects (trines, sextiles) weigh 15.5, testing ones (squares, oppositions) 25.9 and conjunctions 0.1; conjunctions count half towards harmony.

Strength of contact (30% of the weight): 100%. This shows how many close aspects link the two charts; Sun, Moon, Venus and Mars contacts weigh most.

Element fit (20% of the weight): 100%. This compares the share of fire and air planets with earth and water planets in each chart.

◆ Aarav and Meera: 69 out of 100

How to read the score

Testing aspects are not bad: they often bring attraction and growth. A lower score means the relationship asks for more conscious effort; a higher one means much flows naturally. Every relationship is finally made by the choices and care of two people.

06 How this report was made

This report uses the tropical zodiac of Western astrology with Placidus houses. Major aspect orbs: conjunction and opposition 8°, square and trine 6°, sextile 4°, each 2° wider with the Sun or Moon. Transit orbs are 3° (sextile 2°).
